

Art Deco

What automotive era brought us the best-looking cars ever? This question is a recipe for an endless argument that is unlikely to reach an agreeable conclusion. Most gearheads will swear that nothing will ever look as good as a timeless classic because they don't make them that good anymore. But some new cars are stunningly gorgeous. You can easily stare at a Bugatti Chiron or a Maserati MC20 for hours without getting enough of the beautiful curves.

In the 1930s and 40s, the art deco movement infiltrated automotive design after influencing the creation of many a skyscraper, furniture, jewelry, fashion, and everyday household objects. The arty approach to industry resulted in cars and bikes that would remain gloriously beautiful and elegant. Most of these cars are the highlight masterpieces in revered museums and collectors' garages. For instance, The Mullin Automotive

Museum stands out as the home to the most extensive collection of art deco vehicles, featuring the finest French car collection.
